LETTING IN THE NEW YEAR.

BY FANNY H. ROCHESTER.

It was the last night of the old year, and Grace Dean and her mother were alone in their cottage on the edge of Wolcott woods. Once Grace had been a petted heiress, but since the insolvency and death of her father, she had made only too familiar acquaintanceship with poverty. Little, indeed, did the inhabitants of Pineville suspect that the pale, weary looking seamstress, who had come a stranger among them and rented the Wolcott Cottage, and who depended chiefly for her subsistence on the patronage of Judge Wolcott's family, had once, in a distant city, moved among the highest in the land and been even the belle of her sex.

And on this night the heart of Grace was heavy. Though it was nearly midnight she still plied her needle, and her tears fell fast as she sewed. She was thinking of the festive party up at the hall, with its lights and flowers and music and dancing; and she pictured the portly old judge, once her friend, gaily leading the revels; and another, younger and handsomer than even the judge had been in his best days, who was also alienated from her.

Mrs. Dean sat slumbering in her chair, occasionally waking to bemoan their hard, hard fate, that they had again to seek their fortunes in a strange place; but the mother knew nothing of the deeper sorrow of the daughter, and Grace vowed that she never should, though her own heart broke for it.

Grace had been sewing at the Wolcott's when Mrs. Wolcott was seized with a malignant fever. The servants had fled in dismay, leaving only the invalid's two daughters to take care of her; and these were young, ignorant, and necessarily inefficient. In this emergency Grace had tendered her services.

All through Mrs. Wolcott's long and dangerous illness, Grace nursed her faithfully and tenderly. For many days the room was kept darkened and quiet; Madge and Fanny hovering uneasily about, obeying with the docility of children, while the judge and his son Richard would steal in softly and sit beside the sufferer while Grace rested.

At length came days of convalescence, and now the family gathered in Mrs. Wolcott's room, and wiled away the hours with reading and pleasant conversation; and when she was stronger, there were long, pleasant evenings in the luxurious parlors, when Madge played and Richard and Fanny sang, and Grace sat by Mrs. Wolcott's side, quiet and very happy.

In those days, all social distinction appeared to be forgotten, and the poor seamstress was treated as a valued friend. Grace never could forget the evening when Mrs. Wolcott first joined the family at the tea table. Judge Wolcott carried her out in the dining room, while the rest followed. It was a warm, pleasant evening. The windows were open, and the sweet odors and sounds of Summer came stealing in. Mrs. Wolcott motioned Grace to a seat beside her, saying:

"I have had Grace by me so long, I should feel lost without her."

They were all in high spirits, glad and grateful, and happy that the danger had passed, and the beloved wife and mother was with them as of old.

Grace sat and listened to the cheerful flow of words, but felt strangely—she could not eat. Richard, who sat opposite, noticed it, and said:

"Miss Dean looks like an invalid herself."

A faintness came over Grace and she fell insensible. When she awoke to consciousness again, she was lying on a sofa, and the family were grouped around with anxious faces. Madge was bathing her head, and Grace heard the physician's voice saying:

"It is the fever; she is worn out with her exertions in your sick room, madam, and will need the best care."

Grace was weak and helpless as a child, and Mr. Wolcott carried her up stairs. Then came a blank. Sometimes she would see kind anxious faces beside her; then all would be dark again. But it passed at length, that terrible illness; and then it was so pleasant to be carried into the sitting room those pleasant autumn mornings, while Mrs. Wolcott, who was now quite restored, occupied her usual place, Madge usually busied herself about her embroidery, and Richard often read to them, while Fanny flitted about like a little humming bird as she was. While Grace grew stronger, she often went out in the carriage with Mrs. Wolcott, and sometimes one or both of the young ladies.

When the danger of infection was over, things fell more into their regular course—Grace returning to her mother at the cottage. But she was, nevertheless, almost constantly at the hall where, though nominally still the seamstress, her position in the household was entirely changed. Whenever the family spent the evening at home alone, she often joined them in the parlor, and afterwards a servant would be sent to accompany her home, or the Judge, or his son would walk down with her.

It drew near Christmas. Some guests had arrived several days before, among whom was Mrs. Landsdowne, (Mrs. Wolcott's sister,) and her daughter Minnie, with Maud Redfield, an old school friend of the Misses Wolcott. Nothing could be more unlike than the fair, violet eyed Minnie Landsdowne, and the dark, regal beauty of Maud Redfield; and Grace felt a dislike to the latter, as she did a preference for the former. The antipathy seemed to be mutual, for whenever they met, Miss Redfield regarded grace with a haughty stare that deepened her dislike.

One day after Miss Redfield's arrival, Grace met Richard on the stairs. He greeted her cordially, saying "where do you keep yourself these pleasant days, Miss Dean? I'm afraid our guests almost frighten you into making a prisoner of yourself."

Grace blushed more at his manner than his words, and before she could reply, a voice said:

"I am ready, Mr. Wolcott," and looking up she saw Miss Redfield standing at the head of the stairs, dressed for a ride. Richard answered with a bow and smile, and offered her his arm, while she gave Grace a look of mingled contempt and hatred.

Christmas came and went. New Year was at hand. Now, New Year was always a great day at Wolcott Hall. The Judge belonged to an old Knickerbocker family, besides New Year was his birthday. This year, New Year fell on Tuesday. On Saturday, as Grace was sewing at the Hall, Miss Redfield abruptly entered the room.

"Will you sit down?" Grace inquired, scarcely knowing what this visit portended.

Miss Redfield smiled and drew up a chair beside Grace, saying:

"I have come to ask you a favor. It is a trifle, and I am sure you will grant it. I had a dress made just before I left home, and intended to wear it New Years Eve, but I neglected to try it on till yesterday, when I found that it needed some alteration before I could possibly wear it. I was out a long time trying to find some one to do it in the village; but everybody is busy just now; and as a last resort I came to you."

"Certainly, I would do it if I had time," replied Grace; "but I don't know how it will be."

"O, I know you will have no time Monday," interrupted Miss Redfield; "but you might do it to-morrow."

"To-morrow!" Grace repeated in dismay; "surely, you do not mean it! To-morrow is the Sabbath!"

"But it is a work of necessity," said Miss Redfield.

"Pardon me Miss Redfield," said Grace, "But it does not seem at all necessary to me. I have seen you wear a number of beautiful dresses since you have been here, and surely some of them will do for Monday evening."

"Yes, yes," she rejoined, impatiently; "but I have worn them ever so many times, and this is new and so becoming. I have set my heart upon it and must have it." And she placed a shining gold piece in Grace's hand.

"Them that honor me, I will honor!" seemed to sound in Grace's ears and she answered decidedly, as she returned the gold:

"No, Miss Redfield, I cannot do it to-morrow. Money is no temptation to me to violate the law of God and my own conscience. And if I did it at all," she continued proudly, "I should do it for nothing."

A malignant expression crept over Miss Redfield's face as she rose, saying, You will repent of this! But I know what your object is; you have got some of the Wolcott's puritanical ideas, and you think your saintly ways will find favor in Richard's eyes. But I can tell you he is as proud as he is good, and with all his chivalrous ideas of right and of honor, he will never stoop ——"

The hot blood was flushing Grace's face as she rose and held open the door. Miss Redfield, angrier than ever at this hint of dismissal, could not finish the sentence, but with a look of bitter hatred, passed out. Grace closed and locked the door, then threw herself on a chair and wept as if her heart would break.

On Monday there was a joyous bustle through the house. Grace was working busily upon some articles that she knew Mrs. Wolcott wished to have done that day, when she heard Miss Redfield's voice in the hall saying, "I have a protegé whom I would like to recommend to you in her place. I think she would please you better."

To Grace's astonishment she heard Mrs. Wolcott say in reply:

"Thank you; I think I shall employ her, as I have contemplated a change for some time."

Grace was thunderstruck; what could Mrs. Wolcott mean? How could she have offended Mrs. Wolcott, who was so gentle and so just? All the morning Grace pondered her words, and wondered what she should do when cast upon the world again.

"She will surely help me to find another place," Grace thought. She knew well that she had done right; and, as human helpers seemed to fall away, she leaned with firmer trust on the Divine. "Truly," she thought, "The ways of the All-wise are mysterious and past finding out. It seems strange to me that this wicked girl should triumph; but I know it is all right. The hearts of men, O God, are in Thy hands, and trusting in Thee, I will await the issue."

And so she sat that bright morning, and listened to the joyous sounds, and noted the guests as they flitted past her half open door, and saw the sleigh drive off with Richard and Miss Redfield.

It was afternoon when Madge came in hurriedly, saying, "why, Grace, how pale you are! We have been so busy lately, that I havn't seen you. You are too much confined here."

"Yes, and it's a shame for her to be stitching away this merry holiday time when everybody else are enjoying themselves!" chimed in Fanny, who had entered unperceived. "Mamma sent me to tell you," she continued, "not to mind about finishing that trimming—something else will do just as well. She said she meant to tell you before, but she has had so much to take up her attention lately. We are going to have a grand time to-night, and mamma wants you to be sure and come down."

"I thank you," Grace managed to say; "but I think that I had better not come."

"O, but you must," said Fanny, and never supposing that Grace would continue obstinate, they left her.

But how could Grace go? What was there in common between her and the happy, brilliant company to be assembled that evening? The dream of her life was over. Not until it had been so rudely dissipated was she conscious that she had indulged in it. How insane she now saw it to have been! Ah, little, she thought, did her triumphant enemy know of the blow she had struck, and how it had gone to Grace's heart of hearts!

When night began to fall, she had come home, plodding her way wearily over the snow, and having prepared her frugal supper, had sat down to sew. Her mother had observed her evident distress, and had insisted on knowing the cause. So Grace, unable to put her entirely off, had mentioned her own approaching disunissal from Mrs. Wolcott's as the reason, when her mother begged her to lay down her work. Her answer had been:

"No, I must be more industrious than ever now. God only knows, indeed what will become of us. We must leave here; nobody will employ me, now that Mrs. Wolcott casts me off."

And her mother unable to comfort her, and equally oppressed with fears for the future, had finally desisted.

The moonlight lay bright and cold without; the woods, except where the avenue pierced them, were dark; but neither were darker nor colder than the heart and hopes of Grace. It was the habit at Pineville, as it is at many other places, for parties to go about, on this evening, from house to house, singing, which they call letting in the New Year. As Grace sat sewing she suddenly heard voices without, but she was in no mood for such a visit, and she rose to draw the curtain, not without a secret fear, for the cottage was lonely, and she knew no one who would be likely to come singing at their door, unless rude boys or ruder men. Her alarm was increased when she saw, through the latticed window, a face that was unknown to her, and she gave a scream. At that moment, however, another step was heard, and a deep voice, that made her heart leap with a sudden bound, was heard, speaking authoratively, even angrily.

Instantly there was a knock at the door, and the same voice cried—

"It is I—don't be afraid, Grace."

With trembling hands she opened the door. The men were disappearing down the road—the little gate into the Wolcott woods was open—and up the avenue, (which led to the hall) she thought she saw a sleigh, with a muffled figure or two in it.

"O, Grace, how could you?" were the first words of the young man, as he took her hands.

She blushed crimson, but could not answer. What did it all mean? Richard gave her no time for thought.

"We expected you till night set in," he said, "and the Judge, finding you did not come, ordered me to start in the sleigh and bring you, rating Fanny soundly for having forgotten to ask your mother, which is the reason, he says, you didn't come. So Fanny is out in the sleigh to help you dress, and the housekeeper comes to stay with your mother, if Mrs Dean thinks it too cold to go out."

What could Grace say? Before she could reply, Richard had darted back to the sleigh, and was leading back Fanny. Mrs. Dean, when her wonder let her understand how things were, said she was too old to leave a warm fire at such an hour, and so the housekeeper was called in. Grace, still bewildered, was soon ready, thanks to the nimble fingers of Fanny and her own simple wardrobe; and, with a beating heart took her place in the sleigh which moved merrily off in the moonlight under the still, grand trees.

The Judge came down to the front door, to hand grace out of the sleigh, and himself led her up to Mrs. Wolcott, who rose and kissed her as if she had been her own daughter. Miss Redfield, standing aloof, looked daggers at the new comer. Poor Grace did not dare imagine what it all meant. It seemed so strange to her to be moving in that brilliant throng, leaning on Richard's arm.

The pleasant remarks of her companion had the effect to restore her, in some measure to herself, and she was almost surprised to find herself talking so freely to Miss Landsdowne, whom they met near the door of the conservatory, to which her partner soon led her.

The perfume of the rare exotics greeted her like the breath of Summer. At the farther end of the room they stopped to admire a brilliant flower, when Richard said:

"I have a gift, Grace, which I want you to accept from me," and he held up a diamond ring, "but first will you give me the hand upon which I would place it?"

"Richard! Mr. Wolcott!" she exclaimed; "you are not in earnest?"

"I never was more so," he said. "Will you take the ring?"

"But your parents?" she asked, half bewildered, hardly knowing what she said.

"I have their sanction, dear Grace, and I await yours," and he held up the ring with a questioning gesture.

Grace extended her hand; he pressed it to his lips, placed the ring upon her finger, then drew her head to his bosom. "My poor little lamb," he murmured drawing aside the veil of curls that hung over her hot, throbbing brow—"now I have a right to take care of you. It has made my heart ache to see you looking so pale, and to think of you toiling so patiently."

Grace could only listen passively; the change was so sudden that it overpowered her; she could hardly realize that she was betrothed to Richard Wolcott.

At length she said:

"They will miss you—had you not better return to the parlors? I will stay here awhile."

He smiled and replied, "I want to present you to my parents first."

"O, I cannot see any one to-night!" she exclaimed. "Indeed I cannot!"

"You needn't fear," he said; "you will receive a daughter's welcome." And he led her back to the parlor. The Judge and Mrs. Wolcott were standing together, and though everything around Grace appeared to float and blend in inextricable confusion, yet she was conscious that they welcomed her to their hearts and home; and she heard Miss Landsdowne say: "So you will be cousin Grace. Well, I shall love you dearly!"

And then came Madge and Fanny, with their warm hearts and graceful welcome. But everything seemed to Grace like a dream, till she found herself in her little room, Richard having driven her home himself.

And that was the way for Grace, that THE NEW YEAR WAS LET IN.

GOPHERS DROWNED BY THOUSANDS.—The Marysville Standard says: We understand that Briggs' new orchard will not suffer much damage by the present high water; that high water on fruit trees, when the sap is down, does no damage to trees or the coming crop. But this immense orchard will suffer some damage from the wind and the loosening of the soil. There are quite a number of trees among this fruit forest which have toppled over, and will suffer loss of limbs, as when they are raised to their former upright position the proprietor will trim them close. There is also a slight loss from damage to fences. The division fence between Riggs and Briggs has been washed away. We also learn some interesting incidents in relation to gophers. This land, before the flood, was alive with those little animals. The high water has probably not left enough for "seed." The little fellows, when forced to leave their holes, labored to save their lives by climbing the fruit trees. Being unable to reach the limbs they would cling to the bark of the body of the trees until the water reached them, and then fall off and drown. The carcasses of thousands may be seen floating beneath the trees of this immense orchard.

The Catacombs of Paris.

Perhaps not one in five thousand of the army of visitors to Paris ever explores the wonders of that subterranean city which underlies the capitol of France. On the surface everything is brilliant and vital; below, all is dark and dead. For almost every great artery of the living city there is a corresponding avenue below. The famous catacombs or charnel-house of Paris occupy the site of the old quarries in the southern part of the city, and are of vast extent. Access to them is only obtained through permission of the chief-engineer, who has an office in the Hotel de Ville, and this is only granted about three or four times a year, and to a limited number of persons.

There are seventy staircases, in various parts of the city, leading down into the catacombs, but the principal one is to the south of the observatory in the court-yard of the western pavilion of the old Barrier d'Enfer. Visitors must provide themselves with candles, lanterns and matches. You go down a spiral staircase, and find yourself, after a short walk, not without awe, standing in the city of the dead. The galleries of the catacombs are walled with human bones, and the cornices are composed of white and grinning skulls. The stones used in the most ancient buildings of Paris were taken from beneath its surface, and these quarries were worked for several centuries. The Observatory, the Luxembourg, the Odeon, Val de Grace, Pantheon, and several other large buildings, stand over the yawning caverns caused by these excavations.

At last the people woke up to the dangers that threatened them from this source, but not until the earth had caved in in various places, and serious accidents had occurred. The Government in 1776 ordered a survey of the excavations, and it was officially reported that the churches, palaces, and most of the public streets in the southern quarters of Paris, were in imminent peril of sinking into these dreadful gulfs. The very day a corps of engineers was organized to secure the city from the peril, a house in the Rue d'Enfer sunk into a chasm. The subterranean labors of the engineers were prodigious, and the work has been going on ever since.

The vast underground cavities were utilized by establishing the catacombs, to receive the bones of the Cemetery of the Innocents and other graveyards in the city. The Cemetery of the Innocents had been used by twenty parishes of Paris, and was crowded with the dead of a thousand years. The atmosphere of the neighborhood was poisoned, and the living was sacrificed to the dead. In 1776 the cemetery was suppressed and the bones removed to the catacombs. During the Revolution, the bodies of persons killed during the troubles were placed in the catacombs, and the suppression of several cemeteries led to a vast accumulation of the relics of mortality. It was in the years 1810 and 1811 that M. Frochot, Prefect of the Seine, commenced the task of arranging the skulls and bones architecturally, and made them, according to M. Dulaure, the historian of Paris, "interesting, almost agreeable."

On reaching the vestibule of the catacombs, you read two inscriptions, the first in Latin, the second in French: "Beyond these bounds rests those who have experienced a blessed hope." "Pause! This is the empire of death." Texts from Scripture, quaint sayings and epitaphs are recorded, here and there, throughout the extent of the catacomb.

There are altars, chapels, crosses, all made of human bones, representing past generations of citizens from the days of the Cæsars and the Norman invasion down to the present. The remains of Kings and beggars, nobles and ladies, persecutors and persecuted, assassins and their victims, lie here, side by side. Here are the bones of the Stuarts, the Valois, the Bourbons, and the Orleans family. The skull of Philip of Orleans (Egalite) is here, but you cannot distinguish it. Here are the bones of St. Genevieve, the patron saint of Paris, of Mirabeau, of Marat, stabbed in his bath by Charlotte Corday, of Philip of Champaigne, of Rabelais, of Mademoiselle de la Valiere, the repenant favorite of Louis XIV. You may be sure that there are Rohans, Montmorencies and Luxembourgs here. In one place, above a clear spring, there is inscribed: "Our days flow away like water."

Innumerable pillars of hewn stone now support the roof of the catacombs, and prevent those accidents which were of frequent occurrence. It is with a feeling of relief that you leave the place, after having received many a lesson on the vanity of human glory, and the invincible power of the arch-leveller, Death.

Restored to the upper world, after a tour through underground Paris, the sights you have witnessed seem to you like the images of a terrible dream.

Issues of the Campaign.

1. One term of office for the President, and no more; the Constitution to be amended to secure this reform.

2. Both Grantism and Tweedism to be abolished in national affairs by laws for the summary punishment of present-taking and bribe-taking as well as of public robbery.

3. Universal amnesty and restoration of political rights to all persons concerned in the late rebellion.

4. Reform in the Civil Service, so that appointment to office will no longer depend on party patronage, and can not be used as a means of corrupting the politics of the country and perpetuating unworthy men in high places and so that the President cannot appoint his own relatives or those of his wife to any office whatever.

5. Reform of the revenue; reduction in the number of revenue officers and the expenses of collecting duties and taxes; fixed salaries for all revenue officers; the abolition of import duties on all the necessaries of life, and the reduction of other duties to a consistent, rational, and moderate system; the abolition of unconstitutional and superfluous internal taxes, leaving only stamps, tobacco and distilled spirits as the subjects of such taxation.

6. Legislation to prevent the levy of blackmail upon clerks and other public officers for party political purposes, and for the summary punishment alike of those who demand and those who pay such contributions.—N. Y. Sun.

Can You Afford It?

Can you afford to work hard all day, and read, study or court the vagaries of society nearly all night, thus wasting your vitality, exhausting your nervous system, and bringing on premature disease, decay and old age?

Can you afford to read fine print with a poor light in a rail car, where the motion disturbs the proper focus of vision, thus weakening your eyes so as nearly to deprive you of the power to use them either in reading or in the daily duties of life? Even though you do not have an occulist to pay, you may be obliged to wear glasses ten or fifteen years sooner than you otherwise would; can you afford thus to spoil your eyes to save a little time?

Can you afford to eat hastily, and then rush to study or business, withdrawing the nervous energy from the digestive system to the brain and muscles, and thus inducing dyspepsia, in a few years at most, to scourge and haunt and make you miserable for years or for life?

Can you afford to live on rich and highly seasoned food, eating champagne suppers, because an artificial appetite is thus gratified, rendering gout, dyspepsia or apoplexy, in the middle of life, almost a certainty?

Can you afford to commit suicide through the indulgence of appetite and passion, adopting the fool's motto, "A short life and a merry one?"

Can you afford to keep your brain boiling hot in reading hot, sensational novels, thus unbalancing and rendering morbid your mental and physical constitution?

Can you afford to indulge in fast living, dressing beyond your means, driving livery horses or keeping a horse yourself, when your income is not adequate to such expenses?

Can you afford to smoke and chew tobacco, thus spending from five to fifty dollars a month, injuring your nervous system and perverting your whole constitution, and thereby transmitting to your children a weakened constitution, thus making them puny invalids for life?

Can you afford to burn out your nervous system and demoralize your whole character by the use of alcoholic liquors?

Can you afford to indulge in habits of speculation, gambling and other trickery and mean modes of making money?

Can you afford to make money at the expense of your manhood, your morals, your health, your just respectability and your integrity?

Can you afford to gain the whole world and thereby make of yourself a moral wreck?

Can you afford, for the sake of momentary amusement, to waste your youthful preparatory years, when by study you should become a scholar, or by industry either a tradesman or a useful artisan?

Can you afford to rob your mind to clothe your back with silks and satins, to gratify a mere love for display?

Can you afford to be tricky and thereby defraud your employer of the just services you owe him, even though you do get your pay, thus making yourself a moral bankrupt?

Can you afford to be otherwise than upright, truthful, faithful, temperate, courteous, and in all respects correct?

Pupils in schools sometimes fancy they are doing a smart thing by deceiving the teacher in order that they may play instead of study. Apprentices often neglect their duty for fun and amusement and fail to learn their trade, which is a life-long damage to them. Many people do wrong knowingly, and thus mar their moral nature and make themselves feel mean, unworthy and despicable; and, because the world don't know it, they think they have done themselves no harm; but they carry the moral scar of wrong-doing through life. Can one afford to have any motto averse to the old addage that "Honesty is the best policy?"

Reader, stop and consider whether what you are doing, or what you propose to do, will pay; whether you can afford to do it. "Time is money;" do not throw it away, but make every day and every hour tell, either for your growth, health or profit.—Phren. Jour.

THE SPOILS OF A WRECKER.—A strange story, worthy of novelistic treatment at the hands of a Marryatt, comes from Newfoundland. In Chance Cove, a secluded island, dwell a little company of fishermen, one of whom, who rejoices in the name of Barnacle Bill, has long been a subject of suspicion on account of his unsociable and hermit-like life. His hut was situated remote from the others, upon a peak overlooking a dangerous reef called Gilliuddy Breakers. These circumstances combined to fasten upon Barnale Bill the suspicion that he had a penchant for wrecking operations, and after the recent loss of the schooner Albion, none of the crew of which were subsequently discovered dead or alive, it was determined to search the aforementioned hut. Accordingly, a detective having been procured, together with the requisite legal papers, a large deputation made an early call upon Barnacle Bill and found that worthy in bed. Inasmuch as he declined to get up and open the door for his surprise party, they let themselves into the house, when an appalling sight met their gaze. Fingers, wrists and ears, cut and torn from the bodies of women, evidently to procure rings and other jewelry, were strewn around. Two solid silk dresses were folded beside the bodies. In all there were nine corpses, only one of which has been as yet identified. The inhuman wrecker, after being taken into custody, confessed that he took the bodies from the wreck of the Albion and conveyed them on a fish borrow to his cliff before dawn. The news has created the greatest excitement in St. Johns, where most of the ill-fated sailors resided.—Boston Post.

THE Washington Patriot makes the following startling statement: The alien, imported governments of the Southern States have added to the funded debt of these States one hundred and seventy million dollars in three years! And the annual rate of increase of this debt is even now,

COUNTY AND TOWN OFFICIAL PAPER.

WOODLAND, CAL:

Saturday, January 13th, 1872.

FLOODED.—On Monday night, Dec. 18th, the water stood two feet deep in the Gilroy Advocate office.

THE DREADNAUGHT SAFE, advertised in the DEMOCRAT, is guaranteed against professors in the science of burglary.

DEATH.—Elisha Cook, Esq., leading counsel for Laura D. Fair, died on Sunday evening last, at his residence in San Francisco.

SNOW.—The telegraph reports that the average depth of snow on the Eastern Summit of the Sierra Nevada Mountains is about six feet four inches—the deepest for many years—while that on the Western Summit is perhaps seven feet six inches.

PUB. DOC.—From Senator Casserly, who will please accept our thanks, we have received the report of the Commissioner of Agriculture for 1870. This seems to us like very slow work for the Government printing office—at least six months longer than necessary.

FOR REPEAL.—In the Senate a bill has passed repealing the State Paper Law. The Assembly has also passed a bill repealing what is commonly known as the Litigant Law. The former will probably pass both branches, the latter is in doubt and will so remain till it comes to a vote.

"MOUNTAIN DEMOCRAT." — This staunch old miner, published at Placerville, has commenced its nineteenth volume and year, as we are pleased to learn, under most favorable circumstances. During the eighteen years it has been published, the Democrat has never missed an issue, and has always battled ably for the Democracy and justice.

DOUBLE AFFLICTION.—But a short time ago Judge Murray Morrison, of Los Angeles, died, deeply lamented, and in four days after, his wife, who had for some time been in feeble health, was so shocked by the blow that she also died. This double bereavement for the survivors of the family will be very hard to bear and has created universal sympathy.

AFTER THE GAMBLERS.—Spurred to their duty by the pungent pricking of the Evening Post, the San Francisco police are making it rather warm for the horde of professional and unscrupulous gamblers who infest that city. Quite a feud has been raised, and there is likely to be warm work unless the gamblers desist and comply with the law, which it is the duty of the police to enforce.

HOW IT WORKS.—From the following, which we take from the Napa Register, it will be seen how the railroad subsidy system works in Napa county: "Treasurer Boggs has just paid the interest on our railroad debt for 1871, and it amounts to the nice little sum of $22,800 per annum. That is just what the luxury of having a nice railroad costs the taxpayers of Napa county every year to keep up the interest on the railroad debt. An excellent luxury!"

VALUABLE COMPENDIUM.—We have from the compiler and publisher, Mr. Henry G. Langley, 612 Clay street, San Francisco, a copy of the Pacific Coast Almanac and Year Book of Facts for 1872, which is very useful, as it contains a vast quantity of information, statistical and other, including the official returns of the last State election by towns and precincts, which alone is worth more than the price, 50 cents; per dozen, $4; per hundred, $30. Address as above.

"PACIFIC RURAL PRESS." — This agricultural paper, published in San Francisco, ought to be in the hands of every farmer on this coast. Indeed it is, in our opinion, the best paper in its line to be had by our farmers, because of its locality, the able, practical style of its editorials, and the contributions and suggestions received continually from the best and most thorough agriculturalists. It is far more valuable for California farmers than any Eastern paper can be.

WHITE MEN MURDERED TO SAVE A NEGRO CRIMINAL.—In Rochester, New York, on the 2d instant, the incensed populace assaulted the jail for the purpose of meteing out justice to a black scoundrel confined therein who had committed an unmentionable crime upon a little white girl, when the military fired upon the crowd and killed three men. This is "negro equality" with a vengence. We are not in favor of mob law or a defender of crime in any shape, but we wonder that after the commission of such an act as this the culprit was not torn from his cell and every one of his kind driven from the city.

VOLUME XIV.—The San Francisco Daily Examiner commenced upon its fourteenth volume on the 2d instant, having survived six and a half years since the office of the Press was sacked by a Republican riot and its types and other material thrown into the street, after which event the Examiner was started by the same proprietors. Editorially it is beyond doubt one of the ablest papers in the country, and is the acknowledged organ of the Democracy of this State—sound in its political principles, firm as a rock in their support, honest and outspoken in their discussion, and in every way deserving of the hearty support of Democrats and all other honest men.

HEAR HIM.—John Quincy Adams, of Massachusetts, in a recent letter, has this to say of the Radical party. We should judge he was in a position to know whereof he writes, and we believe his opinions will have weight throughout the country. He says: "I regard the present Administration as a national calamity, a continuance of which should be averted at almost any sacrifice, not because it is Republican in politics, but because it is mean in character, sordid in tone, corrupt and arbitrary; because more than any we have had, it has disappointed the hopes and deadened the generous aspirations of the good men of all parties; because it is doing more to permanently disunite the States than the government of Jefferson Davis ever did; because its chief can conceive of no means of free government but military force, and no motive of public action but private profit. Four years more of such an education in family patronage and martial law, will so blunt the keen sensibilities of popular liberty that our ignoble incubus might as well remain a fixture."

POVERTY OR TEMPERANCE.—Under this head the San Joaquin Republican gets off the following good hit at the managers of the inaugural ball:

The attempt on the part of our Republican friends to make a virtue of necessity by hawking it about the country that no wine or liquor of any kind was used at the inauguration ball supper, is in bad taste. The real truth is that poverty, not teetotal principles, was the banisher of whisky from that supper table. The committee were short of funds and could not afford to furnish the inaugurate dancers with free liquor. It was, however, to be had in abundance for coin in a convenient ante-room. This reminds us of another thing. It was announced authoritively, we presume, that one complimentary ticket to the Inaugural Ball would be sent to each daily paper in the State. We have only to add that the San Joaquin Republican is a daily paper of very large circulation, great political influence and decided editorial ability, published in the energetic, rich and prosperous city of Stockton, in the mineral, fertile, mining, agricultural, Paradisical State of California, and we will take our book oath that no complimentary Inaugural Ball ticket put in an appearance at the office of the hereinbefore mentioned influential daily paper. We never did care a great deal about the ticket, and since we found out that the Committee were too poor to treat their friends, we are glad we did not patronize the concern. The trick of bumming puffs on a promise to send tickets and then not send them is about "played out."

WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE.—The tenth volume of this periodical opens with the January number, which is before us. Like its predecessors, it is full of substantial home reading. Its contributions for the month include a story by Virginia F. Townsend; "The Dead Year of Disaster," by Geo. S. Burleigh; "Washington and His Loves," by Rev. J. B. Wakeley, D. D.; "Newburgh and its Surroundings," by Joel T. Headley; "Going to Housekeeping," by Efsa Mansfield; "Planning a Career," by Horace Greeley; "City versus Country," by Gail Hamilton; a Temperance story, by Alice E. Williams; "The Wife of Dr. Franklin," J. Parton; "Enough's Enough," by Thomas K. Beecher, etc., etc. The Household fills a blank that has long existed, by supplying, at a low price, a good Magazine which is but one dollar a year. Any person not acquainted with it, will receive a copy free by addressing S. S. Wood & Co., Newburgh, New York.

FENCE LAW.—Perhaps we do not fully understand the fence law in its bearings upon the different sections of the State, but one thing is evident—that where its costs about five times the value of all the cattle in a county, as is the case in some counties in the State, or where the outlay necessary to fence land is twice as great as the amount the land itself costs, which is the case in other localities—it certainly does look to us as though the law was unnecessarily burdensome and would have the effect to retard settlement and improvement to a very great extent. A petition is in circulation in this county asking a modification of the present fence law by the Legislature.

REINCORPORATION. — We notice that our Assemblyman, Hon. F. S. Freeman, introduced in the Assembly Jan. 9th, an Act to Incorporate the Town of Woodland. The town was incorporated under the general law nearly a year ago. Mr. Freeman is one of our Town Trustees, and we presume it has been found that the general law does not confer sufficient powers to enable the Trustees to carry on the management of the incorporation successfully; and hence an Act is sought to be passed by the Legislature conferring the necessary powers. We have not seen the Act.

THE STATE PRINTING. — Senator Pendegast has introduced a bill which has been read twice by title and referred to the Committee on Printing, which provides that the State printing shall be let to the lowest bidder; and a Board of Public Printing created, consisting of the Secretary of State, Controller and Attorney-General, whose duty it shall be to advertise for proposals; the existing law creating the office of State Printer to be repealed.

RAINFALL IN SAN FRANCISCO.—Up to the close of the year over twenty-one inches of rain had fallen in San Francisco for the season, and two inches for that day. This is more than has fallen there up to January 1st during any preceding season since the settlement of the city by Americans.

NO LETTER.—We are unable to present our readers with a letter from the Capitol this week. The arrangement had been made for a letter every week, but the failure this week is doubtless due to the disarrangement of the mails.

Startling Tragedy in New York—Jim Fisk Shot.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6th—11 P. M.—The whole community was thrown into a state of intense excitement at a late hour this afternoon by the intelligence that Colonel James Fisk, Jr., had been shot and probably fatally wounded by Edward S. Stokes. It appears that at the close of the examination into the Fisk-Mansfield case this afternoon, Stokes left the Court-room in a carriage and proceeded to the neighborhood of the Grand Opera-house on Twenty-third street, where he remained some time. Shortly after 3 o'clock Fisk left the Erie office in the Opera-house building, and Stokes, entering a carriage, immediately drove to the Grand Central Hotel, which he was seen to enter about 3:30 P. M. Fisk's carriage arrived at ten minutes past 4, and the Colonel alighted at the ladies' entrance for the purpose of visiting Miss Morse. He was ascending the stairs when he discovered Stokes standing at the head of the stairs with a pistol in his hand. The doorkeeper states that almost instantly two shots were fired, and that Fisk leaned up against the wall saying, "I am hurt; I am badly wounded." Stokes waited some seconds at the head of the stairs, and then turned and walked coolly to the ladies' parlor, when he threw his revolver on a sofa, and then quickly descended the stairs leading to the street. The clerks and proprietor heard the reports and were on the alert. As Stokes passed the office he turned into Mercer street, exclaiming, "I guess there is somebody hurt up stairs," then broke into a run towards the barber shop. The proprietor of the hotel shouted, "stop that man." Hall, Berry and others, started after Stokes, catching him just as he turned into the barber shop, and brought him back, and detained him till an officer came, when he was taken to the Fifteenth Precinct station-house and locked up. Colonel Fisk was lifted up and laid on a sofa. He was very cool and collected, and gave hasty instructions to send for a number of persons. In a few minutes he was undressed and had at his bedside Drs. Foster, Wood, Tyler, White and Marshall. Several other physicians arrived later. On examination, the wounded man's arm was found to be shot through and through, and a wound was discovered three inches above the navel and two inches to the right of the legium line, downward at an angle of forty-five degrees. The wound was probed, but the surgeons failed to discover the ball. The chances were said to be against his recovery, and his death from exhaustion declared probable. The wounded man heard their decision calmly, and immediately sent for David Dudley Field, who on arriving, drew up Fisk's will.

Wm. M. Tweed, Judge Ould, Peter B. Sweeny, Miss Morse and her mother, whom Fisk had come to visit, and several of Fisk's family, were the only persons admitted to the dying man's chamber. A large force of police were detailed to preserve order, and to prevent intruders.

FISK'S ANTE-MORTEM DEPOSITION.

The following is the ante-mortem deposition of James Fisk, Jr., he being sworn: I feel I am in a very critical condition. I hope I will recover. This afternoon about 4½ o'clock, I rode up to the Grand Central Hotel. I entered by a private entrance, and when I entered at the first door I met a boy, of whom I enquired if Mrs. Morse was in. He told me that Mrs. Morse and her youngest daughter had gone out, but he thought the other daughter was in her grandmother's room. I asked him to go up and tell the other daughter that I was there. I came through the other door and was going up stairs and had gone about two steps when, looking up, I saw Edward Stokes at the head of the stairs. As soon as I saw him I noticed he had something in his hand, and in a second of time I heard a report, saw a flash and felt the ball enter my abdomen on the right side. A second shot was fired immediately after, which entered my left arm. When I received the first shot I staggered or ran towards the doors, but noticing a crowd pouring in the front, I ran back on the stairs again. I was then brought up stairs in the hotel. I saw nothing more of Stokes until he was brought before me by an officer for identification. I fullly identified Edward Stokes as the person who shot me.

(Signed) JAMES FISK, Jr.

The Jury found a verdict in accordance with the facts. An urgent telegram has been sent to Mrs. Fisk, at Boston, requesting her to come, if necessary on a special train. Mrs. Hooker, Fisk's sister, to whom he is so devoted, arrived at the hotel shortly after the occurrence and at once installed herself as nurse. Her presence seemed to greatly relieve the wounded man.

The reporter interviewed Mr. Stokes in his cell. The prisoner was found lying on a hard couch. In answer to the inquiry whether he wished to make any statement, he said, in a good natured tone, "I am sorry that I cannot gratify your curiosity, but I have just had a consultation with counsel, and it is his special request that I make no responses to reporters or even to the Coroner."

NEW YORK, Jan. 7th.—Col. James Fisk, Jr., died, at 11 o'clock this morning, from the injuries received yesterday at the hands of Edward S. Stokes. Early this morning the first change in the patient's condition was observed. He had lain upon his side during the entire night, breathing heavily, but up to 6 o'clock had not developed any alarming symptons, save that around his eyes were dusky rings that seemed to show some danger. He grew a little restless; his face had assumed greater pallor, and his breathing was less easy and regular. On feeling his pulse Dr. Fisher found that it had grown rapidly, making 100. A half hour later Col. Fisk said something in a broken tone, and then closed his eyes. The change in his face had grown more apparent, the pallor more deathlike, and the death-damp appeared upon his forehead. At 7 o'clock it was first announced that the danger of his sudden demise was very great, and a quarter of an hour after this his wife, with her father and one or two friends arrived. Drs. Sayre, Wood, Crane, Steel and Fisher made a most careful examination of the wound, and finding that the bullet had passed far beyond reach did not continue to probe for it. The second ball, which passed from the arm about the bend of the elbow, was a most murderous missile. It was as large as a rifle ball, and had been discharged from a navy Colt's revolver, four-barreled, and which is now in the possession of the Coroner, who will produce it at the inquest. The sufferer was awakened every half hour and a little water administered, after which he would immediately relapse into his death-like sleep. At 4 he awoke and described his condition as tolerably comfortable. A few minutes passed, and the watchful doctor detected heavy, stertorous breathing, which was most suspicious. He placed his hand upon the shoulder of his patient and endeavored to rouse him. He rolled his head from side to side, and adopted all the expedients he could resort to, for the purpose of waking him but did not succeed; coma became more confirmed, and an examination of the dilated pupils of the eyes showed that they were irresponsive to light. No effort was spared to break up his insensible condition, and though the physicians knew what was to be expected, they labored steadily until death seized the victim at 10:47 A. M. At different times between 3 o'clock and the moment of his death relatives and friends were constantly arriving, among them Mrs. Fisk, who had been summoned from Boston, a female friend, Mrs. Harrit, Col. Fisk's brother-in-law, Mr. Sanderson, and Mr. Baldwin, the surgeon of the Ninth Regiment, and others. Mrs. Fisk was entirely overcome, and was present when he breathed his last. Within a brief time the news of Col. Fisk's death was known all over the city, and an immense concourse gathered in the vicinity of the hotel. Policemen were stationed at the main stairway of the hotel, and no one was permitted to pass up stairs until the remains had been prepared by the undertaker. A plain rosewood casket was procured and in it the remains were placed. The face looked natural as life; no expression of pain was visible, and his moustache was waxed and as perfect as when alive. The body lay in state for some time, and during the afternoon was removed from the hotel to the late residence of Mr. Fisk.

The murder was the all-absorbing topic of conversation in the city to-day. No other subject was thought of at the offices of the Erie railway. Flags were displayed at half mast, and on every side expressions of sympathy for the action were to be heard.

FEARS OF LYNCHING STOKES—FISK'S WILL.

Considerable anxiety is felt to-night for the safety of Stokes. At the Tombs it was rumored that a large body of employes would come to the city and attempt to lynch Stokes, and also that the members of the Ninth Regiment would sack Mrs. Mansfield's house. The Tombs is also strongly guarded, and by to-morrow, it is thought, the indignation will have subsided.

The will of Colonel Fisk was made public this evening. He leaves the bulk of his property to his wife; to his father and mother he leaves each an annuity of $3,000; to his sister he leaves $100,000 in stock in the Narragansett Steamship Company, and $2,000 per annum to each of the Morse sisters, until such time as they marry.

THE FISK INQUEST.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9th.—The Fisk inquest was resumed this afternoon.

The jury retired at 5 o'clock, and at 7:50 submitted a verdict which all signed, that Fisk came to his death in consequence of a wound or wounds inflicted by a ball or balls from a pistol in the hands of Edward S. Stokes, discharged by him in a deliberate manner at the person of said Fisk at the Grand Central Hotel. The Coroner committed Stokes to the Tombs to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Miss Mansfield's house is closely guarded by officers under orders of the Coroner, to prevent her leaving it without his permission.

HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.—By the arrival of the Moses Taylor we have Honolulu dates to Dec. 23d.

A Koloa letter says: We had the heaviest freshet here on the night of the 22d that has occurred since 1846. It washed away bridges, cane and taro, and did a great amount of damage to buildings and roads. Some of the houses in Koloa had two feet of water in them. We had another freshet on the night of the 25th, but not quite so high as the first. The wind was from southeast to southwest during the rain, but not very strong. The trades came down on the 27th, with very pleasant weather.

During a storm which commenced on the 21st of Nov. over the southern part of the Island of Kauai, and lasting four days, rice fields and many taro patches were destroyed.

The freshet of Koloa carried away the stone bridge at that place, and at Hanapepe nearly every house was flooded, the residents being compelled to take shelter mong the rocks until it had subsided.

During the 22d, 23d and 24th of November it rained almost constantly at Waimea, with the wind strong from the south. The river rose to a freshet, and the natives were paddling in their canoes over the taro patches and on the roads.

DANIEL R. SAMPLE, the late business manager of the Sacramento Record held a policy of one thousand dollars in the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Boston. At the time of his death the renewal payment on his Policy was over due over four months. The General Agent of the Company at San Francisco, Mr. Wallace Everson, paid the widow the full amonnt insured, less the unpaid premium. This case practically demonstrates the benefit of the Massachusetts Nonforfeiture Law.

SHERMAN ISLAND.—Mr. D. L. Perkins, of Emmaton, furnishes the following particulars concerning Sherman Island: The levee has protected the island thoroughly, although the tide on the 23d ult. was the highest seen for years. But little drift has passed down the river. Three miles above Mr. P.'s house the whole country is under water. Sherman Island is very productive, and a beet sugar manufactory is talked of. Sugar beets grow to perfection and there are good facilities in the way of land, coal, water and river navigation, for the establishment of such an enterprise.

INFORMATION IS WANTED. — John Harp, a blind boy who has just arrived in California, desires to learn the whereabouts of his brother Leonard Harp, a blacksmith, who resided in Visalia in 1863, and left there to go to Esmeralda, Nevada. Any information as to his present residence addressed to the Suisun Republican office will be thankfully received by his brother, who is in needy circumstances. California and Nevada papers will do an act of charity by copying.

ANOTHER BREAK.—On Sunday last a train came through from Vallejo to Knight's Landing and returned on Monday morning. The storm of Monday washed away the track just below Davisville, and we were again cut off for a day or two. Thursday the train got through again, the company having with commendable energy kept relays of men at work night and day to repair the break in the road.

HEAVY MAIL.—On Wednesday last a large amount of delayed mail matter arrived at the Woodland Postoffice. Postmaster Ruggles informs us there were over a thousand letters received, many of them from the East,

HOW IT IS TO BE PUT THROUGH.—The Washington organ of Grant says that it will require not less than ten thousand regular troops, judiciously distributed through the Southern States, to insure a free and a fair election in those States in 1872; and that it may be necessary for Congress to increase the army. This is but one of numerous indications that Grant intends to force his re-election by placing the whole South under bayonet rule should he receive the Republican nomination. Such a method of insuring a free and fair election, certainly deserves the credit of originality. It is only equalled by the ingenuity of the Ethiopian present-taker who relates his experience in one of the negro minstrel halls: "Pompey, whar you get dat watch?" "A man gub it to me." "Gub it to you for nuffin?" "Yes—but I had to knock him down free or four times afore he'd do it." If Grant runs for President in 1872 he is determined to have a free and fair election, even if it should be necessary to bayonet every man in the Southern States who opposes him. What would be deemed a free and fair election by a man who has used the United States troops and Gatling guns to control the action of a Republican convention at New Orleans, may easily be imagined. —New York Sun.

DR. SAGE'S Catarrh Remedy is no Patent Medicine humbug gotton up to dupe the ignorant and credulous, nor is it represented as being "composed of rare and precious substances, brought from the four corners of the earth, carried seven times across the Great Desert of Saharra, on the backs of fourteen camels, and brought across the Atlantic Ocean on two ships." It is a mild, soothing, pleasant Remedy, a perfect Specific for Chronic Nasal Catarrh. "Cold in the Head," and kindred diseases. The proprietor, R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., (whose private Government stamp is on every package of the Genuine,) offers a reward of $500 for a case of Catarrh he cannot cure. For sale by druggists. Sent by mail, post paid, for sixty cents. Address the proprietor as above.

THE "DREADNOUGHT" SAFE,

Manufactufactured by the

Tilton - McFarland Safe Manufacturing Company,

95 and 97 Liberty Street,

NEW YORK,

The only Company manufacturing this

Burglar Proof Safe.

In introducing this BURGLAR-PROOF SAFE to the American Public, the Manufacturers offer a Safe, not burglar-proof merely in name, but one which may be surely relied upon to defy all the efforts of the most accomplished burglars for a longer period of time than they can ever have to operate upon a safe.

There is no other safe in the market which, by means of the most approved appliances, may not be opened by skilled burglars in from six to ten hours of uninterrupted attack.

The Dreadnought Safe,

It is admitted by scientific and practical men, will resist for all time the uninterrupted attack of skilled burglars, provided with the most modern appliances which can be carried or introduced into any Bank, Vault or Counting-room, as no equal power can be brought to bear in any such place as to overcome the strength and combination of the material used and the mode of construction.

POWDER or NITRO-GLYCERINE cannot be introduced into it. WEDGES cannot be employed to open it. The Oxy-hydrogen blow-pipe only opens the way to new and insurmountable difficulties before which the boldest burglars would shrink in despair. Drills, even though diamond-pointed, cannot penetrate its walls. It is impossible to drive in a bolt so as to make an aperture for introducing explosives, as no bolt in the safe passes entirely through the walls, and no bolt penetrates through the outer shell. The position of the bolts, their construction, size, and the way they are inserted, all combine to add to the difficulty and perplexity of the burglar who attempts to open the safe.

Plantation Bitters

S. T.---1860---X.

This wonderful Vegetable Restorative is the sheet anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid, it has no equal among stomachics. As a remedy for the nervous weakness to which women are especially subject, it is superseding every other stimulant. In all climates, tropical, temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits.

For a period of over fifty years this Company has promptly met its obligations, without a day's delay, and has ever occupied the position of the

LEADING AMERICAN FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.

This position it will continue to maintain, and in the present crisis will preserve and add to its well earned reputation.

Telegraph advices from Hartford, under date of the 24th ult. report the Chicago loss not over three millions; and a Directors' meeting of that day voted to make the Reinsurance Fund intact by assessment of the stockholders. This leaves the Company with a capital of $3,000,000 and over $1,000,000 surplus.

District Court Calendar—Jan. Term.

The following is the general calendar of cases set for trial at the January term of the Sixth District Court for Yolo county, commencing Jan. 15th:

The People vs. John Wood; People vs. Christian Barth; Sacramento Savings Bank vs. John Hynes; Amos Warring vs. Andrew McCoy; Samuel Haines vs. Wm. Wishart; Geo. Robertson vs. Cal. P. R. R. Co.; Tiery Wright vs. Levy Carpenter et al.; Tiery Wright vs. B. H. Roseberry et al.; Tiery Wright vs. Robert Husted; James Moore vs. F. W. Fratt; Joseph Griffin vs. Yolo County; Calvin Covell vs. Yolo County; Mary J. Clark vs. E. L. Clark; Tiery Wright vs. Mathias Eibes et al.; Samuel Ruland vs. B. Mendessolle; Wm. Dresbach vs. W. D. Wristen; W. D. Wristen vs. I. Friedlander and Wm. Dresbach; L. C. Oldum vs. Isaac Cross et al.; The Central P. R. R. Co. vs. Hans Schwerin.

The following cases appear upon the Law Calendar for the same term:

The People vs. Thomas Morris et al., No. 38; The people vs. Thomas Morris et al., No. 39; The People vs. Henry E. Cook et al.; California Quicksilver Mining Company vs. J. H. Redington et al.; Clear Lake Water Works Company vs. Lake County; Bridget O'Dea vs. Cal. P. R. R. Co.; Lorenzo Dexter vs L. R. Taylor; R. L. Beamer vs. W. F. Head; Thos. F. Laugenour; vs. Cal. P. R. R. Co.; Emmanuel Mast vs. Rosa Mast; Henry Perry vs. Cal. P. R. R. Co.; Elizabeth Kirsch vs. K. F. E. Kirsch alias Emil Kaufman; Sarah J. Rawlins vs. M. C. Rawlins; Frank Multner vs. L. Seibes and J. S. Bowman; James Farris et al. vs. Samuel N. Merring; Joseph Schuler vs. C. G. Dray et al.

EDITOR DEMOCRAT: — The Yolo Weekly Mail at the end of its so-called "Annual Review," says: "If we have made any omissions in this review we hope the neglected ones will be kind enough to inform us," etc. There are several omissions to which its attention might be called; but to have made two of these omissions under the head of "Surveyor," is so palpably intentional, that I wish to call the attention of the public of Yolo County to them, through your more widely circulated columns. One of them is L. Friel, Deputy County Surveyor, and the other J. S. Henning, compiler and publisher of the map of Yolo County, both residents within the corporate limits. The Mail cannot plead ignorance of the two Surveyors omitted, when it is well acquainted with both, meets them almost daily, and is well acquainted with their professions. J. C.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT WASHINGTON. The Sacramento Record of the 4th inst., gives an account of a casualty that occurred in Washington, Yolo county, on the 3d, which illustrates the folly and danger of allowing boys to handle firearms. A boy named Hall was shot and instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a shotgun which he was handling. The charge passed through his chest from shoulder to shoulder. The parents of the lad are residents of Washington, and of course keenly feel the blow which has thus suddenly bereft them of a loved and promising son.

JUSTICE'S COURT—J. H. THOMPSON, J. P.—Suits were instituted before Judge Thompson, as follows: Jan. 3d, Sill & Craft vs. Benj. Hastings, to recover the sum of $50; Jan. 11th, Bank of Woodland vs. Benj. Hastings, for the recovery of $45. Attachment issued in each case. Jan. 12th, People vs. Wm. Troop, for assault and battery on Mary Ann Gould. Defendant appeared by his Attorney, C. S. Frost, and plead "not guilty." The case was postponed until 10 o'clock this (Saturday) morning.

BOLD ROBBERY.—On last Saturday morning the saloon of H. Stegall was entered while the proprietor was at his breakfast and something over twenty dollars stolen from the till. This is the second time within a month the same place has been robbed, and Stegall says the third time will "let somebody out," or he is mistaken in his calculations.

LAND AGENCY.—J. C. Ball, agent of W. S. Green & Co., has now on hand and for sale cheap, large tracts of farming and grazing lands in Yolo county. Persons desiring to purchase, or having land for sale, will do well to give us a call, as this agency affords superior advantages for buying and selling real estate to any yet established. *2t

WEATHER.—The past week has been one of storms, scarcely a day passing without rain. The croakers (all of us) can quit now for a while and feel sure of better times ahead in consequence of the rains, of which we have had such a plentiful supply.

SUPERVISORS MEETING.—A special meeting of the Board of Supervisors will be held on the 17th instant, when various road matters, etc., will be considered.

Letter from Grafton.

NORTHWEST GRAFTON,
January 9th, 1872.

EDITOR DEMOCRAT:—I don't know how else than as above to date my letter, but n' importe. The heavy rain of yesterday has made the roads so soft, that I doubt whether you will receive this for some days. They were bad enough before, almost impassable, except on horseback; numbers of wagons are stuck in the mud between here and Woodland. But if we are tied up for a while with no mail or papers to read, we can console ourselves by looking at the broad area of growing grain, which surrounds us on every side. There are over ten thousand acres of summer fallow mostly in sight that is growing so fast you can almost see it rising up. Among the largest bodies are Dunnigan's, 480 acres; Copp, 840; Clark, 2,000; Hershey, 300; Brinley, 480; Burns, 500. There are also some 500 acres newly plowed and sown. Among the newly plowed land is 60 acres of Mr. Oliphant's that is 4½ to 5 inches high, and many pieces are so well set as to hide the ground at a short distance. All of this land is on and near the Colusa line. Feed is starting up everywhere, and the weather has been so mild that stock has suffered but little.

Will write you again when the roads open, if anything of interest occurs. H.

IN MEMORIAM.—Some facetious individual, prompted, doubtless, by the fact that nothing has been heard from the town authorities for some weeks past—some one without the fear of the Town Marshal before his eyes—perpetrated a "drive" at the said authorities by erecting in a very public place, in the midst of a lake, a "tombstone" with the following inscription in bold lettering:

SACRED
to the
MEMORY
of the
CORPORATION
of
WOODLAND.

Born in May,
In December dead,
Right here I lay
In my little bed.

Farewell to fortune and to fame,
Adieu to power and peif,
I've lost all but my name,
"You know how it is yourself."

FALSE REPORT.—The Mail of Thursday last said, "The brick buildings in Woodland are nearly all in a dangerous condition." This is not so. Several brick buildings that we have heretofore mentioned are considerably damaged on the south side from exposure to the storms, and in two or three instances portions of the walls will have to be rebuilt. It is bad enough in fact, but we fail to see why the matter should be made worse by exaggeration. With the exceptions referred to the damage to buildings is comparatively trifling.

ATTACHMENT SUIT.—In the District Court of the Sixth Judicial District for Yolo County, Simpson vs. Hastings, for the recovery of a certain sum of money; judgment confessed. As a sale by the Sheriff was about to take place of the stock in trade, etc., of defendant, consisting of drugs, medicines, and the like, on Thursday last, a telegram from the U. S. Marshal stayed proceedings, and defendant's affairs will probably have to be settled in the Bankruptcy Court.

INSTALLATION.—At the regular meeting of Shawnee Tribe No. 40, Improved Order of Red Men, of Woodland, on Wednesday evening last, the newly elected officers for the ensuing term were installed by District Deputy Parmeter, of Davisville, as follows: Sachem, Wm. Saunders; Senior Sagamore, Jason Watkins; Junior Sagamore, T. B. Reindollar; Chief of Records, F. E. Baker; Keeper of Wampum, P. C. Robertson.

LEAP-YEAR PARTY AT THE LANDING.—The ladies of Knight's Landing will give a grand Leap-Year Ball at Hoyt's Hotel on the evening of Jan. 19th, for which the invitations have been issued. 'Squire Hoyt knows exactly how to do the refreshments. A splendid time is safely anticipated.

CACHE CREEK.—Cache Creek yesterday overflowed its banks for the first time this year. Fears were entertained that the railroad bridge over it, between here and Knight's Landing, might suffer from the torrent of water washing the abutments at the ends of the bridge.

CHANGE OF BASE.—Hadsell & Hardin have reopened the Bank Exchange Saloon, nearly opposite the Postoffice, and being old hands at the business will keep it in a proper manner. They promise to furnish their customers with the best of liquors and cigars.

PETITION FOR DISINCORPORATION. In our advertising columns will be seen a notice of a petition to the Board of Supervisors for the disincorporation of the Town of Woodland. It came to hand too late for comment in this issue.

NEW QUARTERS.—Read & Welch will occupy their newly fitted up store, next door east of their old stand, on and after Monday next, and invite all their friends and the public to give them a call.

ADJOURNED FOR THE TERM.—Judge Hutton adjourned the County Court for the term on Monday last. No further business was transacted than was reported in our last.

THE PARTY.—The Ladies' Grand Leap-Year Party last night was in every respect a success. Particulars next week.

FOUND.—About two weeks ago a lady's fur cape was found on the sidewalk and left at this office for identification by the owner.

JURYMEN.—Fifty jurymen have been summoned for the trial of cases at the approaching term of the District Court

NEW ROUTE.—It is stated by a Vallejo paper that as soon as practicable the route to Sacramento will be via Davisville and Woodland to Knight's Landing, and thence down the Sacramento river to the Capital City by steamer. This route may be made practical throughout the winter, and to our mind will be the best that can be adopted.

REMOVED.—Nangle, the Anatomical Boot Maker has removed his shop to the Good Templars' building, opposite Roberts' livery stable and west of the railroad. He will make fashionable boots to order that will fit like a charm. He respectfully invites the patronage of his old customers and the public in general.

IT RUNS LIKE A PRAIRIE FIRE.—We will say of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters that it runs like a prairie fire. The fame of the great Temperance Tonic is, however, but poorly exemplified by this figure of speech; for a prairie fire runs only in one direction, whereas the reputation of the Bitters speads towards all points of the compass with equal rapidity. We do not believe there is a square mile of inhabited territory in the civilized portion of the United States where this meritorious preparation is not appreciated. If any theoretical gentleman thinks he is prepared to show that there is "nothing in it," we advise him to go to the Prairie States, to the Mississippi Valley, to the deltas of the Southern rivers, to New England, in fact anywhere within the limits of Uncle Sam's real estate," and ventilate his views. By so doing he can raise a heartier and more general laugh than has ever yet shaken the sides of an intelligent people. Persons who have been cured can't help laughing at other people who tell tell them that the medicine which saved their lives is a failure.

THE STATE ASSAYER of Massachusetts, (A. A. Hayes, M. D.,) having made an analysis of Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, reports it the best preparation for promoting healthy excretions of the scalp, increasing the growth and restoring the color of the hair.

DIED.

In Woodland, Jan. 11th, Thomas Y. Tebbs, brother of Mrs. P. C. Robertson, aged 28 years.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A Body and Mind Disease.

Such is dyspepsia. The stomach and the brain are too intimately allied for the one to suffer without the other, so the dyspepsia and despondency are inseparable. It may be added, too, that irritation of the stomach is almost invariably accompanied by irritation of the temper.

The invigorating and tranquilizing operation of Hostetter's Bitters is most powerfully developed in cases of indigestion. The first effect of this agreeable tonic is comforting and encouraging. A mild glow pervades the system, the chronic uneasiness in the region of the stomach is lessened, and the nervous restlessness which characterizes the disease is abated. This improvement is not transient. It is not succeeded by the return of the old symptons with superadded force, as is always the case when unmedicated stimulants are given for the complaint. Each dose seems to impart a permanent accession of healthful invigoration. But this is not all. The aperient and anti-bilious properties of the preparation are scarcely secondary in importance to its tonic virtues. If there is an overflow of bile the secretion is soon brought within proper limits, and if the bilary organ is inert and torpid it is toned and regulated. The effect upon the discharging organs is equally salutary, and in cases of constipation the cathartic action is just sufficient to produce the desired result gradually and without pain. The Bitters also promote healthy evaporation from the surface, which is particularly desirable at this season when sudden spells of raw, unpleasant weather are apt to check the natural perspiration and produce congestion of the liver, coughs, and colds. The best safeguard against all diseases is bodily vigor, and this the great Vegetable Restorative especially promotes. ja

THE GREAT
BLOOD PURIFIER.

JUDGE S. HEYDENFELDT says: "My attention was called to it about eighteen months ago, when I had been suffering with rheumatism for more than a year, and had failed to find relief from other remedies. The YERBA SANTA relieved me entirely in two days. Some ten or twelve cases of Rheumatism, two cases of Gout and two cases of Neuralgia have been relieved within my immediate knowledge." E. H. SNYDER says: "I fully concur with Judge Heydenfeldt in regard to the curative powers of YERBA SANTA. I have myself used it, and take pleasure in recommending its use to those afflicted with Rheumatism in any of its forms." T. J. JENKINS, M. D., (Physician to Butte County Hospital,) says: "I have used YERBA SANTA for some years in my private pretice as physician. I have found it invaluable in cases of Chronic Rheumatism, and of much benefit as an alterative BLOOD PURIFIER and tonic." FRANK MATHEWS, of Oroville, says: "Some years since, I was a martyr to Rheumatism, crippled in hands and feet, unable to move except with crutches, at all times suffering great pain. I was induced to try YERBA SANTA. I soon experienced great benefit from its use. I am at the present time strong and indeed I recommend it to those who are afflicted as I was to try it." CHAS. WALDNER, of Cherokee, Butte county, states: "For many years a sufferer from Rheumatism in its most painful type I sought relief in vain until I was induced to try the YERBA SANTA, when I found perfect restoration to health. I have recommended it to my many friends, and in all cases a perfect, a speedy cure was the result of its use." J. R. ROBERTS, of San Francisco, says: "I had for three years been afflicted with the Rheumatism, to such an extent that in all that time I was unable to do any work. I was at last induced to try YERBA SANTA; after using two bottles I was completely cured, and am now as well as I ever was in my life." M. H. DARRACH (County Clerk of Butte county,) says: "I have seen much of the beneficial effects of YERBA SANTA in Scrofula, also in Salt Rheum, Rheumatism and Neuralgic affections. I believe I know of no instance where it has failed to cure." YERBA SANTA completely restores the system when impaired by disease, revives the action of the kidneys, and radically cures scrofula, Salt Rheum and all eruptive and cutaneous diseases. It is PURELY VEGETABLE, being made from an herb indigenous to California. It is therefore peculiarly suitable for use by Females and Children, as a Blood Purifier and Renovator. YERBA SANTA is for sale by all dealers in family medicines.

The Yolo Democrat.

THE CLOSE OF THE YEAR.

BY GEORGE D. PRENTICE.

I.

Gone! gone forever! Like a rushing wave
Another year has burst upon the shore
Of earthly being—and its last low tones,
Wandering in broken accents on the air,
Are dying to an echo.
The gay Spring
With its young charms is gone—gone with its leaves—
Its atmosphere of roses—its white clouds
Slumbering like seraphs in the air—its birds
Telling their loves in music—and its streams
Leaping and shouting from the up-piled rocks
To make earth echo with the joy of waves;
And Summer, with its dews and showers, has gone—
Its rainbows glowing on the distant cloud
Like spirits of the storm—its peaceful lakes—
Smiling in their sweet sleep, as if their dreams
Were of the Spring flowers and budding trees
And overhanging sky—and its bright mists
Resting up in the mountain-tops, as crowns
Upon the heads of giants. Autumn, too,
Has gone with its deeper glories—gone
With its rich green hills, like altars of the world,
Lifting their rich fruit-offerings to their God—
Its cool winds straying 'mid the forest aisles
To wake their thousand-winged harps—its serene
And holy sunsets hanging o'er the west
Like banners from the battlements of heaven—
And its still evenings, when the moon-lit sea
Was ever throbbing, like the living heart
Of the great universe. Ay—these are now
But signs and visions of the past—their deep,
Wild beauty has departed from the earth,
And they are gathered to the embrace of death,
Their solemn herald to eternity.

II.

Nor have they gone alone. High human hearts
Of passion have gone with them; the fresh dust
Is chill on many a breast that burned ere while
With fires that seemed immortal, joys that leaped
Like angels from the heart, and wandered free
In life's young morning to look upon the flowers.
The poetry of nature, and to list
The wov'n sound of breeze and bird and stream
Upon the night air, have been stricken down
In silence to the dust. Exultant hope,
That roved forever upon the buoyant winds
Like the bright starry bird of paradise,
And chanted to the ever-listening heart
In the wild music of a thousand tongues,
Or soaring into the open sky, until
Night's burning gems seemed jeweled on her brow,
Has shut her drooping wing, and made her home
Within the voiceless sepulchre. And love,
That knelt at passion's holiest shrine, and gazed
On the heart's idol as on some sweet star,
And dreamed of ecstacies until his soul
Seemed but a lyre, that wakened to the glance
Of the beloved one—he, too, has gone
To his eternal resting-place. And where
Is stern Ambition—he who madly grasped
At glory's fleeting phantom—he who sought
His fame upon the battle-field, and longed
To make his throne upon a pyramid of bones,
Amid a sea of blood? He, too, is gone!
His stormy voice is mute—his mighty arm
Is nerveless on its clod—his very name
Is but the meteor of the night of years,
Whose gleams flashed out a moment o'er the earth
And faded into nothingness. The dream
Of high devotion—beauty's bright array—
And life's dear idol-memories—all have past,
Like the cloud shadows on a starlight stream,
Or a soft strain of music, when the winds
Are slumbering on the billow.

III.

Yet why muse
Upon the past with sorrow? Though the year
Has gone to blend with the musterious tide
Of old eternity, and bore along
Upon its heaving breast a thousand wrecks
Of glory and of beauty. Yet why mourn
That such is destiny? Another year
Succeedeth to the past—in their bright round
The seasons come and go; the same blue arch
That hath hung o'er us will hang o'er us yet;
The same pure stars that we have loved to watch
Will blossom still at twilight's gentle hour,
Like lillies on the tomb of day—and still
Man will remain to dream as he hath dreamed,
And mark the earth with passion. Love will spring
From the lone tomb of old affections—hope
And joy and great ambition will rise up,
As they have risen, and their deeds will be
Brighter than those engraven on the scroll
Of parted centuries. Even now the sea
Of coming years, beneath whose mighty waves
Life's great events are heaving into birth,
Is tossing to and fro, as if the winds
Of heaven were prisoned in its sandless depths,
And struggling to be free.

IV.

Weep not that time
Is passing on. It will e'er long reveal
A brighter era to the nations. Hark!
Along the vales and mountains of the earth
There is a deep, portentous murmuring,
Like the swift rush of subterraneous streams,
Or like the mingled sounds of earth and air
When the fierce tempest, with asonorous wing,
Heaves his dense folds upon the rushing winds,
And hurries onward with his night of clouds
Against the mountains. 'Tis the voice
Of infant freedom. And her stirring call
Is heard and answered in a thousand tones
From every hill-top of her Western home—
And lo! it breaks across old ocean's flood,
And "Freedom!" "Freedom!" is the answering shout
Of nations starting from the spell of years.
The day-spring! See! 'Tis the bright'ning in the heavens!
The watchmen of the night have caught the sign—
From tower to tower the signal fires flash free,
And the deep watchword, like the rush of seas
That heralds the volcano's bursting flame,
Is sounding o'er the earth. Bright years of hope
And life are on the wing! Yon glorious bow
Of freedom, bended by the hand of God,
Is spanning time's dark surges. Its high arch,
A type of love and mercy on the cloud,
Tells that the many storms of human life
Will pass in silence, and the sinking waves,
Gathering the forms of glory and of peace,
Reflect the undim'd brightness of the heavens.

KILLING A TIGER SINGLE-HANDED.—Another instance of the pitcher going once too often to the well has occurred in India. Captain Doig, an infantry officer, had become renowned as a tiger hunter, and the fame of his exploits had even reached Europe. He was supposed to be invincible, had performed almost fabulous feats, and, was held by the natives to bear a charmed life. The poor gentleman was, notwithstanding, killed by a tiger early in September. He went out one day and had a brilliant success, slaying a fine tiger single-handed. Four or five days after, the news came that another tiger was barking in the same place, and only about six miles from the contonment. The new arrival at once began to distinguish himself by slaughtering bullocks, and Captain Doig resolved to bring his sport to an end. Unaccompaied, save by his own "Shikaries," the hunter repaired to the spot. The savage beast was soon found, and Captain Doig got rather a long shot at him, and felt sure he had hit him in the head. His impression however, was that the tiger had got into the jungles not much hurt, and that he must beat again for him in a fresh quarter. While preparing to do this, Captain Doig being at the moment alone, the enraged animal suddenly leaped from cover, and in an instant seized his foe and bore him to the earth. Captain Doig afterward said that the onset was so swift that he never even saw the beast until he himself was on the ground, and being, as he expressed it, "calmly eaten." A horrible struggle ensued; the "Shikaries" sprang to the rescue, and the intrepid hunter actually fought himself out of the tiger's clutches, and not only that, but managed to destroy him. The encounter was, nevertheless, fatal. Captain Doig had the pluck to ride back to the cantonment, being lifted to the saddle for that purpose. But he never recovered from the shock and frightful laceration he received, and five days after breathed his last. For men who get celebrated for this kind of achievement its pursuit seems to have irresistible fascination, and the sad case of Captain Doig has many precedents.

THE Sacramento Bee says "no man can tell the future, but as matters now appear the people of California may look with much certainty for one of two things: either a Democratic Legislature two years hence or the election of Geo. C. Gorham to the United States Senate to succeed Eugene Casserly." Well, if the Bee has no objections, we will have the "Democratic Legislature." Gorham is a nice man; but to have him and Sargent both in the Senate at one time, would be rather too much of a good thing.

Sewing Machine!
A New Favorite in California.

The Domestic Sewing Machine has just been introduced into this State, and is now offered to the public. It makes the Shuttle or Lock Stitch, alike on both sides, uses a straight needle, and its range of work is from the heaviest to the most delicate fabric, sewing every kind perfectly. It has a self-adjusting tension, which requires no alteration in changing the thread, or in sewing different thicknesses. In simplicity and durability it is unequaled. One great advantage in this machine is, that it will sew over thick seams without difficulty.

The Domestic Stands on Its Merits Alone,
Which have secured it large sales wherever it has been introduced. It combines beauty of appearance with easy, quiet action and perfect work.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE is furnished in various styles, the prices ranging about with those of other first class machines.

BAPTISED IN FIRE.
THE CHICAGO PHENIX!
A Universal Newspaper.
READ THE FOLLOWING!

A popular weekly paper for the times, embracing the leading features of those journals destroyed by the terrible conflagration, and combining just such a corps of writers as will give the public all the news of the week in a condensed compilation of the leading journals of the nation and the world.

A Truthful Record.

The PHENIX will be the most truthful and reliable recorder of incidents and facts concerning the great fire, ever published.

Accounts of the Fire.

It will contain only such accounts as are vouched for by reliable witnesses, and will correct the erroneous and fabricated statements of sensational writers.

Chicago and the News.

It will, for a time be devoted especially to the past, present and future of Chicago, besides being the most complete weekly newspaper in the world.

Fireside Companion and Newspaper.

Its columns are devoted to News, Commerce, Science, Literature Art, Drama, Music, Humor, Pastime, Poetry, Fashion, Society news, and enough of Romance to make it a most desirable fireside companion, as well as the most reliable and complete newspaper for the business man in the counting-room.

Beautiful Illustrations.

It will be illustrated with engravings taken from Photographs of the Chicago Ruins, instead of sketches, "By Our Special Artist" who was not "on the spot;" and thus give a series of PERFECT VIEWS, not obtainable elsewhere, and the first number will contain the only correct map of the burned city.

Happy Hours.

That beautiful literary journal, "HAPPY HOURS," whose publisher was the first to issue a paper to meet the public demand, after the awful fire, has been merged into the literary department of the PHENIX, which will embrace the contributions of more than sixty of the most popular writers of the day.

A Special Feature.

The PHENIX will contain, as an especial feature a more complete record of incidents and results of the late terrible fire, than can be found in any book, paper or other publication in the country. So numerous and inaccurate have been the accounts sent forth, that something reliable and readable is eagerly sought at this time, and the PHENIX will fill the bill.

A Paper for the People.

The PHENIX is the cheapest paper in America, being an eight-page, forty-column weekly, at only two dollars a year; in fact it shall be the paper for the people and the times.

The First Number.

The first number will be issued on Saturday, November 11th, and will be the paper wanted by everybody, as a record worth preserving or sending away, and for its accurate illustrations.

Its Basis.

It is a consolidation of other journals, and therefore on a solid foundation, continuing their former circulation.

New Subscribers.

To any person who gets us three new subscribers, we will send the PHENIX for one year free, or one of our beautiful prize, steel plate engravings worth $2.50.

Premiums.

For the purpose of rapidly increasing our subscription list before the close of the present year, we will give to every person who subscribes for the PHENIX during the month of November, a beautiful steel plate engraving, worth $2 50, half a dollar more than the price of subscription. No such opportunity was ever before given, and probably never will be again. Avail yourself of it. Engravings will be promptly and safely sent by mail or delivered at this office, as subscribers may wish.

Subscribe Now.

Send in your names and subscriptions at once, and sustain this great newspaper enterprise. Price of subscription only $2 00 per year. Single copies 5 cents. Agents wanted everywhere

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Among the great discoveries of modern science, few are of more real value to mankind than this effectual remedy for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. A vast trial of its virtues, throughout this and other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually control them. The testimony of our best citizens, of all classes, establishes the fact, that CHERRY PECTORAL will and does relieve and cure the afflicting disorders of the Throat and Lungs beyond any other medicine. The most dangerous affections of the Pulmonary Organs yield to its power; and cases of Consumption, cured by this preparation, are publicly known, so remarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proven beyond dispute. As a remedy it is adequate, on which the public may rely for full protection. By curing Coughs, in fourteeners of more serious disease, it saves unnumbered lives, and an amount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial, and convinces the most sceptical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection against the early and unperceived attack of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which become incurable, and often fatal, if neglected. Tender lungs need this defence; and it is unwise to be without it. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of childhood, CHERRY PECTORAL is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are rescued from premature graves, and saved to the love and affection centred on them. It acts speedily and surely against ordinary colds, securing sound and health-restoring sleep. No one will suffer troublesome Influenza and painful Bronchitis, when they know how easily they can be cured.

Originally the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, no cost or toil is spared in making even the bottle in the utmost possible perfection. It may be confidently relied upon as possessing all the virtues it has ever exhibited, and capable of producing cures as memorable as the greatest it has ever effected.

Every year increases the popularity of this valuable Hair Preparation; which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring GRAY OR FADED HAIR to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical HAIR DRESSING ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPARATION for its intended purposes."

CARRIAGE AND WAGON MANUFACTORY!
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
Opposite Gas and Water Works,
WOODLAND, CAL.

LIVERYMEN, FARMERS
AND TEAMSTERS
Will find my make of BUGGIES, SPRING and LUMBER WAGONS, the best in any market for their use.

REASONS WHY:

BECAUSE they have as good if not the best reputation at home. Each Wagon is perfect in all its parts.

BECAUSE my prices are as low as the lowest for first-class work.

BECAUSE I can furnish the highest home testimonials as to their durability and lightness of draft.

BECAUSE none but the best and most experienced mechanics are employed in their construction.

BECAUSE they are built upon scientific principles, combining the greatest strength with lightness of draft.

BECAUSE wherever introduced they are generally preferred by Liverymen, Farmers and Freighters.

BECAUSE they are made in a very DRY CLIMATE, and from that fact are far superior for service to those built in more moist or damp parts of the country.

BECAUSE I give rules for taking care of carriages.

First—The carriage-house should be apart from the stable, as the ammonia arising from horse manure will in a very short time destroy the varnish on a carriage, and then the owner ignorantly charges the carriage maker with using inferior varnish.

Second—In washing a buggy cold water should be used freely, so as to remove the dust and mud before using the sponge and chamois skin.

Third—Never turn the hose under or on the seat, for the water will loosen the canvass and glue, and cause the corners to give way and the body to go to pieces.

Fourth—To preserve the wood and save expense, the carriage should be kept thoroughly painted and varnished.

Fifth—I am better prepared than ever, to Paint, Ornament and Varnish Carriages, Wagons, etc. I have in my employ the best of buggy painters, and use none but the best articles of paints, oils and varnishes; the above in connection with my Paint Shop and Varnish Rooms, which are as good if not the best on this Coast, being hard finished and free from dust. I can, and have turned out as smooth, clean and nice finished jobs as can be done in the State.

Sixth—Those wishing to get their buggies, carriages, etc., repaired and painted, will do well to call at my shop and examine my superior advantages over other shops. I am willing to abide by the injunction, "by their works ye shall know them." I am willing that my work shall praise me; I ask no other endorsement. This endorsement I have had in past years; this I expect to merit and maintain in the future.

C. ELLIOTT.

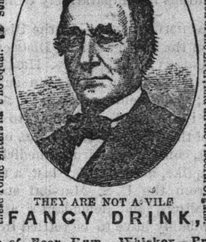
The Great Medical Discovery!
Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS,
Hundreds of Thousands
Bear testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?



They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in Young or old, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

THEY ARE NOT A VILE
FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION.

Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle.

History of Sacramento.

Sacramento City is, comparatively speaking, a small place, alongside of most of the cities in the United States. Were it not for the indomitable perseverance of its inhabitants, it would long ago have been among the things that were. It has had severe fires, sweeping the whole city out of existence; but only to be rebuilt again. It has been flooded a number of times, destroying hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property, but still it lives and prospers. It is a well-known fact that it was the perseverance of Sacramento people that built the Central Pacific Railroad. Most all large California enterprises have originated in Sacramento. Many of the largest mercantile houses on this coast obtained their start in this city. It is now proposed to organize a Free Labor Exchange. This is not a local institution, but will benefit not only the whole of this State, but also Oregon and Nevada as well. This Gift Concert has been chosen as the most feasible manner to raise a fund large enough to place the Labor Exchange on a sound basis. The enterprise has been undertaken by some of Sacramento's best citizens, who have the requisite perseverance and nerve to carry it through successfully.
